

Andrew Edson, Corporate Development Chair for the Autism Speaks Dallas/Fort Worth Executive Leadership Council, is currently in his 14th year of practice as a member in the bankruptcy and restructuring group at Clark Hill PLC, regularly representing lenders and corporations as creditors in commercial bankruptcy cases across the country. He and his wife Jane are parents to three children. His middle child was diagnosed by age three with autism spectrum disorder and a pragmatic speech delay. Through early intervention, his son has been able to thrive in mainstream school environments and maintain a few close friendships. Andrew's desire is to serve others affected by autism and give back to the community that has supported his family.